

INDEX TO ARTICLES PUBLISHED IN THE NEW ZEALAND JOURNAL OF MUSIC THERAPY
2006 - PRESENT

This Index provides an alphabetical listing of titles and authors of articles only.

- A An Education Training and Professional Practice Forum Report on the Remuneration of New Zealand Music Therapists in 2008. Twyford, Karen. 2009, 7, 88–108.
- Assessing and using emerging adaptive electronic music technology to facilitate creative client expression in music therapy. Krout, Robert. 2008, 6, 27–46.
- C CASTELINO, Ajay. (2008). The benefits and clinical applications of the guitar in music therapy: A literature review. 6, 6–26.
- COOPER, Alison & MOLYNEUX, Claire. (2009). Singing the same tune? Co-therapy to support clients experiencing a change of music therapist. 7, 32–60.
- COULSON, J. (2006). "The most important thing is to communicate"– An interview with Mary Brooks, 4, 94–104.
- D DOCHERTY, Louise, NICHOLSON, Jan., & WILLIAMS, Kate. (2007). Sing & Grow: The co-existence of evaluation research and clinical practice in an early intervention music therapy project. 5, 5–20.
- F Facilitating verbal interactions in a music therapy group of adolescents with developmental delays. Potter, Megan. 2008, 6, 47–75.
- Finding a niche: establishing a role for music therapy within the Ministry of Education, Special Education NZ. Twyford, Karen. 2009, 7, 6–31.
- Following the death of a child: Music therapy helping to heal the family heart, Krout, R.E. 2006, 4, 6–22.
- G Getting it together: Understanding the importance of collaboration. Twyford, Karen. 2007, 5, 21–33.
- K KROUT, R.E. (2006). Following the death of a child: Music therapy helping to heal the family heart, 4, 6–22.
- KROUT, Robert. (2008). Assessing and using emerging adaptive electronic music technology to facilitate creative client expression in music therapy. 6, 27–46.
- M MOLYNEUX, Claire & COOPER, Alison (2009). Singing the same tune? Co-therapy to support clients experiencing a change of music therapist. 7, 32–60.
- N NICHOLSON, Jan., DOCHERTY, Louise, & WILLIAMS, Kate. (2007). Sing & Grow: The co-existence of evaluation research and clinical practice in an early intervention music therapy project. 5, 5–20.
- P Perspectives on professionalisation: Implications for music therapy in Aotearoa New Zealand. Wilson, Linda H. 2007, 5, 34–41.

- POTTER, Megan. (2008). Facilitating verbal interactions in a music therapy group of adolescents with developmental delays. 6, 47–75.
- R RICKSON, D. (2006). Reflections on the nature of relationship in brief music therapy encounters with children who have developmental difficulties, 4, 23–45.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2008). The potential role of music in Special Education (The PROMISE): New Zealand music therapists' consider collaborative consultation. 6, 76–97.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2009). The use of music to facilitate learning and development in a school in Thailand: An exploratory case study. 7, 61–87.
- S SHAW, F. (2006). Triadic Improvisations: Developing communication skills, 4, 46–63.
- Sing & Grow: The co-existence of evaluation research and clinical practice in an early intervention music therapy project. (2007). Docherty, Louise, Nicholson, Jan., & Williams, Kate. 5, 5–20.
- Singing the same tune? Co-therapy to support clients experiencing a change of music therapist. COOPER, Alison & MOLYNEUX, Claire. 2009, 7, 32–60.
- Songwriting techniques used by New Zealand music therapists, Williamson, K. 2006, 4, 64–93.
- T The benefits and clinical applications of the guitar in music therapy: A literature review. Castelino, Ajay. 2008, 6, 6–26.
- "The most important thing is to communicate"– An interview with Mary Brooks, Coulson, J. 2006, 4, 94–104.
- The potential role of music in Special Education (The PROMISE): New Zealand music therapists' consider collaborative consultation. Rickson, Daphne. 2008, 6, 76–97.
- The use of music to facilitate learning and development in a school in Thailand: An exploratory case study. Rickson, Daphne. 2009, 7, 61–87.
- Triadic Improvisations: Developing communication skills, Shaw, F. 2006, 4, 46–63.
- TWYFORD, Karen. (2009). An Education Training and Professional Practice Forum Report on the Remuneration of New Zealand Music Therapists in 2008. 7, 88–108.
- TWYFORD, Karen. (2009). Finding a niche: establishing a role for music therapy within the Ministry of Education, Special Education NZ. 7, 6–31.
- TWYFORD, Karen. (2007). Getting it together: Understanding the importance of collaboration. 5, 21–33.
- W WILLIAMS, Kate, DOCHERTY, Louise, & NICHOLSON, Jan.,(2007). Sing & Grow: The co-existence of evaluation research and clinical practice in an early intervention music therapy project. 5, 5–20.
- WILLIAMSON, K. (2006). Songwriting techniques used by New Zealand music therapists, 4, 64–93.
- WILSON, Linda H. (2007). Perspectives on professionalisation: Implications for music therapy in Aotearoa New Zealand. 5, 34–41.