

INDEX TO ARTICLES PUBLISHED IN THE ANNUAL JOURNAL OF THE NEW ZEALAND SOCIETY FOR MUSIC THERAPY 1987-2002
AND THE NEW ZEALAND JOURNAL OF MUSIC THERAPY 2005

This Index provides an alphabetical listing of titles and authors of articles only.

A

- A child with a burn injury in a paediatric hospital: a case study.
Kate Williams, 2003, 30-47.
- ABAD, Vicky. (2002). Sing and Grow: helping young children and their families grow together through music therapy early intervention programs in community settings. 2002, 36-50.
- Adam: a case study of an adolescent boy. Daphne Rickson. 2002, 51-59.
- Advances in Music Therapy: an international perspective. Denise Grocke. 2002, 6-20.
- ALLEN, Natali. (1995). Music and Healing: some assumptions that underpin practice in health care. 1995, 2-12.
- ALLISON, Dianne. (1994). Preventive music therapy and the family. 1994, 1-6.
- Am I My Voice? Communication, speech and music therapy. Julie Coulson. 2004, 99-122.
- Angela's Mother: the early years. Daphne Rickson. 2004, 17- 35
- ARCHER, Christine. (1995). Music and Early Intervention: a survey. 1995, 46-54.
- ARCHER, Christine. (2004). Music Therapy and Early Intervention: the parent-child relationship is centre stage. 2004, 36-49.

B

- BAKER, Felicity, and Elizabeth MacKinlay. (2005). Facilitating the Transition into Motherhood through Lullaby Singing: a pilot study. 2005. 7-35.
- BITCON, Carol H. (1987). Music Therapy: a kaleidoscope of the senses. 1987, 3-6.
- BITCON, Carol H. (1987). Risk It! Adapt It! Music knows no barriers. 1987, 7-10.
- BITCON, Carol Hampton. (1993). Music with Special Needs: let it happen! 1993, 36-42.
- BLACK, Tairahia. (2001). Kei tua ko te papa e arohatia nei. Where it shadows from my view the land that I love: the transmission, revitalisation, and progression of three Tuhoe waiata linked to the past and relevant to contemporary Aotearoa. 2001, 9-25.
- BONNY, Helen Lindquist. (1990). Music and Change. 1990, 5- 10.
- BOOTH, Joanna. (1998). Music, Drawing, and Narrative: a personal stress reduction workshop for music therapists. 1998, 49-56.
- BRADFORD, Kay. (1989). Music and Development. 1989, 16-17.
- BROWN, Pauline. (1992). An introduction to dance/movement therapy. 1992, 36-41.

BRUSCIA, Kenneth. (1988). Professional identity issues in music therapy education. 1988, 11-23.

BUNT, Leslie. (2000). Music Therapy – on the threshold. 2000, 8-18.

C

CAMPBELL, Patricia Sheehan. (1997). Children at Play in their Worlds of Music: musical lives in the making. 1997, 6-11.

The challenge for music therapy in a changing psychiatric setting.

Millicent McIvor. 1990, 23-28.

Children at Play in their Worlds of Music: musical lives in the making.

Patricia Sheehan Campbell. 1997, 6-11.

COLEGROVE, Vivienne. (1995). The use of taped music with validation techniques to support the imagery of a disoriented older woman with multi-infarct dementia and glaucoma: a case study. 1995, 42-45.

Co-mentoring in Music Therapy Education: reflections on practice in the UK and opportunities for New Zealand. Sarah Hoskyns. 2005, 36-66.

The communication of the self and changes of the self in individual music therapy. Carol and Clive Robbins. 1990, 14-21.

A comparison of music therapy session times on the responses of profoundly mentally handicapped students. Nigel J. Cross and Gioia S. Grosso. 1988, 24-27.

CONSEDINE, Jim. (1992). Habilitation for Prison Inmates, Part i : a spiritual perspective. 1992, 42-45.

COULSON, JULIE. (2004). Am I My Voice? Communication, speech and music therapy. 2004, 99-122.

CROSS, Nigel J. and GROSSO, Gioia S. (1988). A comparison of music therapy session times on the responses of profoundly mentally handicapped students. 1988, 24-26.

CROXSON, Morva. (1987). Music therapy in practice and research relating to cerebral palsy. 1987, 11-13.

CROXSON, Morva. (1989). Music in Health: positives and negatives. 1989, 3-6.

CROXSON, Morva. (1991). Music Therapy and Survival: our guardianship for those who follow. 1991, 35-43.

CROXSON, Morva. (1993). Music and Stress: a cybernetics systems approach. 1993, 30-35.

CROXSON, Morva. (1996). Inspirations and Interventions: relationships in music. 1996, 54-58.

CROXSON, Morva. (1997). Training music therapists in New Zealand. 1997, 63-68.

CROXSON, Morva. (1999). Music Therapy and Families. 1999, 40-49.

Cultural Identity and Health. Georgina Kirby. 1990, 21-23.

E

EDWARDS, Jane. (1999). Music Therapy in Medical Settings. 1999, 7-30.

An exploration of stress within therapeutic work. Penny Warren. 1998, 42-48.

ERDONMEZ, Denise. (1991). Music Therapy: meeting the needs of a needy society. 1991, 7-12.

F

Facilitating the Transition into Motherhood through Lullaby Singing: a pilot study. Felicity Baker and Elizabeth MacKinlay. 2005. 7-35.

Family Communication: the meeting of cultures. Daphne Rickson. 1994, 35-42.

Family Harmonics: who conducts the orchestra? Jan Pryor. 2004, 6-16.

Forensic psychiatry and music therapy. Shelley Spang. 1997, 17-28.

From retreat to emergence: a personal journey. Joan Webster. 2003, 48-59.

G

GROCKE, Denise. (2002). Advances in Music Therapy: an international perspective. 2002, 6-20.

GROCKE, Denise. (2002). Music-imagery methods in health and spirituality. 2002, 60-69.

GROSSO, Gioia S. and CROSS, Nigel J. (1988). A comparison of music therapy session times on the responses of mentally handicapped students. 1988, 24-26.

Growth, challenge and change –the continuing journey of music therapy Aotearoa through community, metaphor and song. Robert Krout. 2003, 6-29.

H

Habilitation for Prison Inmates, Part i: a spiritual perspective. Jim Consedine. 1992, 42-45.

Habilitation for Prison Inmates, Part ii: a cultural perspective - is there a sound of music in prison? Colleen Miriama Prentice. 1992, 45-48.

Healing Families: the music therapist's role in early intervention programmes. Daphne Rickson. 1995, 26-35.

HEPBURN, Mary. (1997). Music therapy with the older person. 1997, 54-61.

HEPBURN, Mary and Robert Krout. (2004). Meaning, Purpose, Transcendence and Hope: music therapy and spirituality at end of life hospice care. 2004, 58-82.

Heroic Journeys: he taonga i kitea na te moemoea - a project exploring the use of therapeutic music and imagery with participants from the Maori culture. Millicent McIvor. 1998, 27-36.

HOSKYNS, Sarah. (2005). Co-mentoring in Music Therapy Education: reflections on practice in the UK and opportunities for New Zealand. 2005, 36-66.

HOWAT, Robin. (1998). New Horizons: forward with music therapy. 1998, 5-14.

The Human Being within the Human Environment: the place of music in maximising wellbeing. Joan Webster. 1996, 45-53.

I

Implications for the Future: a major music therapy research project. Anne C. O'Rourke. 1990, 29-37.

Inspirations and Interventions: relationships in music. Morva Croxson. 1996, 54-58.

An introduction to dance/movement therapy. Pauline Brown. 1992, 36-41.

K

KATENE, Te Puoho. (1991). Nga Waiata Manawa: songs of the heart. 1991, 13-20.

Kei tua ko te papa e arohatia nei. Where it shadows from my view the land that I love: the transmission, revitalisation, and progression of three Tuhoie waiata linked to the past and relevant to contemporary Aotearoa. Tairahia Black. 2001, 9-25.

KIRBY, Georgina. (1990). Cultural Identity and Health. 1990, 21-23.

KROUT, Robert. (2002). The use of therapist-composed songs to facilitate multi-modal grief processing and expression with bereaved children in group music therapy. 2002, 21-35.

KROUT, Robert. (2003). Growth, challenge and change –the continuing journey of music therapy Aotearoa through community, metaphor and song. 2002, 6-29.

KROUT, Robert, with Mary Hepburn. (2004). Meaning, Purpose, Transcendence and Hope: music therapy and spirituality at end of life hospice care. 2004, 58-82.

L

LEATHEM, Janet. (2001). Music and the Brain: the interface with rehabilitation. 2001, 48-55.

Listening, Music, and Meaning: making sense of music therapy practice. Mercedes Pavlicevic. 1997, 12-16.

M

MCCAW, Marie. (1989). 21st Century medicine and its implications for music therapy. 1989, 6-15.

MCIVOR, Millicent. (1988). New Directions Inspired by the Old: a Pakeha looks at Maori chant. 1988, 3-9.

MCIVOR, Millicent. (1990). The challenge for music therapy in a changing psychiatric setting. 1990, 23-28.

MCIVOR, Millicent. (1996). Psychotherapy: an overview of major principles and approaches. 1996, 59-68.

MCIVOR, Millicent. (1998). Heroic Journeys: he taonga i kitea na te moemoea - a project exploring the use of therapeutic music and imagery with participants from the Maori culture. 1998, 27-36.

MACKINLAY, Elizabeth, and Felicity Baker. (2005). Facilitating the Transition into Motherhood through Lullaby Singing: a pilot study. 2005. 7-35.

- MATTERSON, Helen. (1999). Relaxation and the Soundbed. 1999, 31- 39.
- Meaning, Purpose, Transcendence and Hope: music therapy and spirituality at end of life hospice care. Mary Hepburn and Robert Krout. 2004, 58-82.
- Moving into an Institution: music therapy to support the elderly in their loss and grief. Joan Webster. 1994, 7-34.
- MUNFORD, Robyn. (2001). Strengthening Families: exploring challenges to building strong families and communities. 2001, 56-68.
- Music and Change. Helen Lindquist Bonny. 1990, 5- 10.
- Music and Development. Kay Bradford. 1989, 16-17.
- Music and Early Intervention: a survey. Christine Archer. 1995, 46-54.
- Music and Healing: some assumptions that underpin practice in health care. Natali Allen. 1995, 2-12.
- Music and Psychiatry. Daphne Rickson. 1999, 50-67.
- Music and Stress: a cybernetics systems approach. Morva Croxson. 1993, 30-35.
- Music and the Brain: the interface with rehabilitation. Janet Leathem. 2001, 48-55.
- Music and Wellbeing: music therapy and palliative care. Clare O'Callaghan. 1996, 4-19.
- Music, Drawing, and Narrative: a personal stress reduction workshop for music therapists. Joanna Booth. 1998, 49-56.
- Music-imagery methods in health and spirituality. Denise Grocke. 2002, 60-69.
- Music improvisation and guided imagery and music: a comparative study. Lisabeth Toomey. 1991, 20-34.
- Music in Health: positives and negatives. Morva Croxson. 1989, 3-6.
- Music: my joy and my friend. Lisabeth Toomey. 2004, 83 –98.
- Music: the way to developing a relationship with disturbed adolescents. Daphne Rickson. 2000, 19-34.
- The Music Therapist working in New Zealand schools with children who have disabilities. Daphne Rickson. 1997, 44-53.
- Music Therapy: a kaleidoscope of the senses. Carol H. Bitcon. 1987, 3-6.
- Music Therapy and Early Intervention: the parent-child relationship is centre stage. Christine Archer. 2004, 36-49.
- Music Therapy and Families. Morva Croxson. 1999, 40-49.
- Music Therapy and Survival: our guardianship for those who follow. Morva Croxson. 1991, 35-43.
- Music therapy assisted communication with children with severe disabilities. Kathryn Stevenson. 2003, 82-92
- Music Therapy in Medical Settings. Jane Edwards. 1999, 7-30.
- Music therapy in practice and research relating to cerebral palsy. Morva Croxson. 1987, 11-13.
- Music Therapy: meeting the needs of a needy society. Denise Erdonmez. 1991, 7-12.
- Music Therapy – on the threshold. Leslie Bunt. 2000, 8-18.
- A Music therapy practice in special education settings in New Zealand. Daphne Rickson. 2001, 26-47.

- Music Therapy with a Child with Cerebral Palsy: a case study. Penny Warren. 1997, 29-43.
- Music therapy with the older person. Mary Hepburn. 1997, 54-61.
- Music with Special Needs: let it happen! Carol Hampton Bitcon. 1993, 36-42.

N

- New Directions Inspired by the Old: a Pakeha looks at Maori chant. Millicent McIvor. 1988, 3-9.
- New Horizons: forward with music therapy. Robin Howat. 1998, 5-14.
- Nga Waiata Manawa: songs of the heart. Te Puoho Katene. 1991, 13-20.
- NUGENT, Natalie. (2003). Processes in group music therapy: Reducing agitation in individuals with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders. 2003, 60-81.
- NUNNS, Richard. (1995). Te Ara Puoro: the pathway of sound - a journey to bring forward the voices of Maori musical instruments. 1995, 13-22.

O

- O'CALLAGHAN, Clare. (1996). Music and Wellbeing: music therapy and palliative care. 1996, 4-19.
- O'HAGAN, Shonach et al. (2004). Transdisciplinary Teamwork Improves Care: five disciplines combine skills to assist people with intellectual disabilities. 2004, 50-57.
- O'ROURKE, Anne C. (1990). Implications for the Future: a major music therapy research project. 1990, 29-37.

P

- PAVLICEVIC, Mercedes. (1997). Listening, Music, and Meaning: making sense of music therapy practice. 1997, 12-16.
- Peeling Back the Layers: a case study of the developing musical relationship between a music therapist and her client. Penny Warren. 1996, 37-44.
- PRENTICE, Colleen Miriama. (1992). Habilitation for Prison Inmates, Part ii: a cultural perspective - is there a sound of music in prison? 1992, 45-48.
- Preventive music therapy and the family. Dianne Allison. 1994, 1-6.
- Processes in group music therapy: Reducing agitation in individuals with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders. Natalie Nugent. 2003, 60-81.
- Professional identity issues in music therapy education. Kenneth Bruscia. 1988, 11-23.
- PRYOR, Jan. (2004). Family Harmonics: who conducts the orchestra? 2004, 6-16.
- Psychotherapy: an overview of major principles and approaches. Millicent McIvor. 1996, 59-68.

R

- Relaxation and the Soundbed. Helen Matterson. 1999, 31-39.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1993). The use of music to facilitate communication with children aged 0-7 years with severe or profound congenital hearing loss. 1993, 3-29.

- RICKSON, Daphne. (1994). Family Communication: the meeting of cultures. 1994, 35-42.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1995). Healing Families: the music therapist's role in early intervention programmes. 1995, 26-35.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1997). The Music Therapist working in New Zealand schools with children who have disabilities. 1997, 44-53.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1998). Sam – a new dawn on the horizon: a case study of music therapy with a boy who has tuberous sclerosis. 1998, 37-41.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1998). The Use of Music and Music Therapy in the Care of Older people: a literature review. 1998, 15-26.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (1999). Music and Psychiatry. 1999, 50-67.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2000). Music: the way to developing a relationship with disturbed adolescents. 2000, 19-34.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2001). A Music therapy practice in special education settings in New Zealand. 2001, 26-47.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2002). Adam: a case study of an adolescent boy. 2002, 51-59.
- RICKSON, Daphne. (2004). Angela's Mother: the early years. 2004, 17- 35.
- Risk It! Adapt It! Music knows no barriers. Carol H. Bitcon. 1987, 7-10.
- ROBBINS, Carol and Clive. (1990). The communication of the self and changes of the self in individual music therapy. 1990, 14-21.

S

- Sam – a new dawn on the horizon: a case study of music therapy with a boy who has tuberous sclerosis. Daphne Rickson. 1998, 37-41.
- Sing and Grow: helping young children and their families grow together through music therapy early intervention programs in community settings. Vicky Abad. 2002, 36-50.
- SPANG, Shelley. (1997). Forensic psychiatry and music therapy. 1997, 17-28.
- STEVENSON, Kathryn. (2003). Music therapy assisted communication with children with severe disabilities. 2003, 82-92
- Strengthening Families: exploring challenges to building strong families and communities. Robyn Munford. 2001, 56-68.

T

- Te Ara Puoro: the pathway of sound - a journey to bring forward the voices of Maori musical instruments. Richard Nunns. 1995, 13-22.
- TOOMEY, Lisabeth. (1991). Music improvisation and guided imagery and music: a comparative study. 1991, 20-34.
- TOOMEY, Lisabeth. (1992). Values in Action: personal and social challenges. 1992, 48-50.
- TOOMEY, Lisabeth. (1995). Towards the Self: the dynamics of the client/therapist relationship in improvisation. 1995, 36-41.
- TOOMEY, Lisabeth. (2004). Music: my joy and my friend. 2004, 83 –98.
- Towards the Self: the dynamics of the client/therapist relationship in improvisation. Lisabeth Toomey. 1995, 36-41.
- Training music therapists in New Zealand. Morva Croxson. 1997, 63-68.

Transdisciplinary Teamwork Improves Care: five disciplines combine skills to assist people with intellectual disabilities. Shonagh O'Hagan. 2004, 50-57.

21st Century medicine and its implications for music therapy. Marie McCaw. 1989, 6-15.

U

The Use of Music and Music Therapy in the Care of Older people: a literature review. Daphne Rickson. 1998, 15-26.

The use of music to facilitate communication with children aged 0-7 years with severe or profound congenital hearing loss. Daphne Rickson. 1993, 3-29.

The use of taped music with validation techniques to support the imagery of a disoriented older woman with multi-infarct dementia and glaucoma: a case study. Vivienne Colegrove. 1995, 42-45.

The use of therapist-composed songs to facilitate multi-modal grief processing and expression with bereaved children in group music therapy. Robert Krout. 2002, 21-35.

The use of toys within music therapy to meet the needs of children on an orthopaedic ward. Liz Wallace. 1996, 20-36.

V

Values in Action: personal and social challenges. Lisabeth Toomey. 1992, 48-50.

W

WALLACE, LIZ. (1996). The use of toys within music therapy to meet the needs of children on an orthopaedic ward. 1996, 20-36.

WARREN, Penny. (1996). Peeling Back the Layers: a case study of the developing musical relationship between a music therapist and her client. 1996, 37-44.

WARREN, Penny. (1997). Music Therapy with a Child with Cerebral Palsy: a case study. 1997, 29-43.

WARREN, Penny. (1998). An exploration of stress within therapeutic work. 1998, 42- 48.

WEBSTER, Joan. (1994). Moving into an Institution: music therapy to support the elderly in their loss and grief. 1994, 7-34.

WEBSTER, Joan. (1996). The Human Being within the Human Environment: the place of music in maximising wellbeing. 1996, 45-53.

WEBSTER, Joan. (2003). From retreat to emergence: a personal journey. 2003, 48-59.

WILLIAMS, Kate. (2003). A child with a burn injury in a paediatric hospital: a case study. 2003, 30-47.